Review:

"Deuter embodies the very essence of the Shakuhachi sound, a subtle yet rich tone. Deuter plays these eleven compositions from a space of deep meditation where sound and silence meet. Flowers of Silence is a true gift of high vibration."

– Honey Harris, KBAC Radio

Artist Biography:

Deuter is the seminal New Age musician, publishing for over 40 years! Also a Reiki practitioner, Deuter lives and works in the mountains of Santa Fe, NM, creating the contemplative, healing music he has become renowned for. Through feeling, awareness and experience, and constantly inspired by the natural world around him, he creates music that transports the listener to a space of peacefulness and wellbeing. He continues to learn and master an ever-expanding array of instruments including the drums, shakuhachi, cello, koto, sitar, Tibetan singing bowls, santoor, bouzouki, and keyboards.

Album Description:

"On Flowers of Silence some of the pieces are Shakuhachi solo, while in others I have expanded the spirit and the soul of this bamboo flute to include a wider musical experience. It is really an art to create sound with the Shakuhachi, and because of that, because it's so free there is a very wide spectrum in the sound. You can change it, you can alter it, you can stretch it, you can push something, you can be very forceful or you can be incredibly soft and sweet. You have to be totally immersed in the moment to play it. There is hardly any instrument that creates such a silent mind, a quiet mind, a space of meditation. With Flowers of Silence I share a piece of my soul with the listener and hopefully it translates to a similar experience of silence and relaxation."
